VOLUME XXXIII NO. 209

SEYMOUR, INDIANA, WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 5, 1908.

PRICE TWO CENTS

TAFT TALKS TOO

Consents to Do Some Speaking Into Phonograph.

Some days ago W. J. Bryan did some talking for the makers of phonograph records and was well paid for it. The enterprising manufacturers of talking machine records then began importuning William Howard Taft to do some talking into the phonograph for them, believing that the records could be sold throughout the country to owners of talking machines. Judge Taft has finally yielded.

The speeches will average about 300 words and be reproduced throughout the country wherever the Edison invention has found a place.

It is said that the records reproducing Bryan's speeches are in preparation and will soon be available. It will indeed be a novel campaign when the owner of a talking machine can invite in his neighbors to hear the leaders of opposing political parties discuss public questions. A life and drum record can be thrown in between and the assembled guests can imagine they are in the procession and a big political rally is in progress.

87 Pound Catfish.

Floyd Franklin, of Little York, while crossing the Muscatatuck river, noticed a commotion in the water on a ripple and, on investigation, he discovered a monstrous catfish stranded in the shallow water, trying to make its way to a deeper pool below. After a sharp struggle he succeeded in bringing his prize ashore. It was a big one, weighing eighty-seven pounds, and measuring five feet in length. Mr. Franklin has placed the catfish in his home, that it may be seen by all men who otherwise might not be convinced as to size and weight.

Gets Promotion.

James M. Myers, of the B. & O. S. W. Secret Service whose duties were confined to the road between Washington and Seymour, has had his duties increased and is now in charge of the road work of the Indiana division, between Washington and Cincinnati and North Vernon and Louisville. The other two agents between whom this work was divided have been assigned to duty in the Cincinnati office. The promotion of Mr. Myers over two men older in the service than he, indicates that his work is appreciated by his employers.

Home Coming.

The people of Reddington and vicinity are taking much interest in the Home-Coming to be held in Fox's Grove August 16 under the auspices of the Reddington Christian Church. Hundreds of letters have been mailed to former residents there and many of them are coming back to the old home that day. The indications are for a very enjoyable day.

Large Tomato.

The REPUBLICAN is under obligations to Mr. Howard Cordell of 514 S. Walnut street for a fine tomato weighing fourteen ounces. Mr. Cordell is an experienced and successful gardener which fact many be seen from the fine corn and all vegetables he raises.

Car Hit Milk Wagon.

Monday evening Nick Albin had a narrow escape while crossing the Pennsylvania tracks at South street. His milk wagon was struck by a car that was being moved on the switch and badly damaged, but Mr. Albin was not hurt.

Camp Meeting.

The camp meeting of the Ohio Falls Holiness association began Tuesday afternoon at Silver Heights near New Albany. The New Albany Tribune says many campers are there to remain through the meeting.

New Automobile.

Chas. Wright, of Paris Crossing has purchased a new automobile. It is a large Auburn runabout and a very handsome machine. Ed. Vehslage made the sale some weeks ago.

Township Convention.

The republicans of Hamilton township convention at Cortland, Saturday August 8, at 1 p. m. The republicans of the township are urged to attend.

Recommend Changes.

The County Board of Charities has made an examination of the jail and poor asylum and recommend a number of changes to better conditions.

Annual Outing.

The fishermen about Hayden and Fox Plains had their annual outing at Staple's Ford Tuesday, entertaining their families and a number of friends. Among those present were: Lon Harrell and family, C. N. Felter and family, A. M. Orcutt and family, Mrs. Anna Abel and sons, E. J. Goodnight and family, also Frank White, Bessie Brady and Mary Keising, of Cana, Miss Conza Felter, of Seymour, and Charles Craig, of Noblesville. A fish fry was enjoyed by the crowd. Boating was a pleasant feature of the day. There was a fine rain in the afternoon but that did not mar the pleasures of the day.

Lining Trolley.

The Indianapolis Columbus and Southern Traction Company have a force of men here today lining up the trolley wire. The trolley has never been perfectly lined since the road was built, having been put in place only temporarily. The workmen have been on the road from Columbus to Seymour for about six weeks and are just now finishing the work.

Sprained Ankle.

Dr. G. G. Graessle who with his family, Chas. Graessle and family and others are on an outing at Peter's Lake, met with an unfortunate accident resulting in a badly sprained ankle. He had on a pair of rubber boots and in walking down the steps from the cabin made a misstep and his ankle was sprained.

Tent Blown Down.

During the storm Tuesday afternoon the big Chautauqua tent at New Albany blew down when there were about 2000 people within. No one was much hurt. The rain was much heavier south than here. Even as near as Crothersville there was a heavy rain. The Muscatatuck came up about three feet.

Welcome Rain.

Farmers in town today say that the rain Tuesday afternoon was worth a great deal to them. The dry weather has affected the corn a great deal and this rain came too late to do some fields much good, but if more rain follows there will still be a lot of good corn in this county.

DEER LICK.

Mrs. Maggie Horning, of Indianapolis, visited friends here Saturday and Sunday.

John Fox and wife visited Harlan Gruber and family Sunday.

Clarence Adams was on the sick list a few days last week.

The melon crop will be short owing to the dry weather.

Chas. Fox and family visited Lowry Foster and family Sunday.

Wm. Riley called on friends at Columbus Sunday evening.

Several from this place attended the picnic at Rockford Saturday.

Rev. Pierce filled his regular appointment Sunday morning. He was accompanied by Mr. Kindle.

Remember the picnic August 13 in Fox's Grove.

Charles Felter and family and a number of others, from Fox Plains, are fishing along the creek this week.

Mrs. John and Frank Rich spent Monday evening with Mrs. Julius Johnson and family.

Charles Rich and family spent Sunday evening with Grant Bedel and family.

Frank Rich hauled a big load of wheat to Seymour last Monday.

Mrs. Maggie Rich and Miss Etta Rich attended the fair at North Vernon last Thursday.

The little attacks of stomach trouble and stomach disorders will undoubtedly lead to chronic dyspepsia unless you take something for a sufficient time to strengthen the stomach and give it a chance to get well. If you take Kodol in the beginning and avoid the bad attacks of Dyspepsia, but if you allow these little attacks to go unheeded it will take Kodol a longer time to put your stomach in good condition again. Get a bottle of Kodol today. Sold by all druggists.

Mr. W. H. Wade, of Indianapolis attended to some business here today and returned home this afternoon.

DISTANCE WALKER

Pases Through Here on Way to New York.

Henry Stewart an English long distance walker passed through Seymour on his way to New York City this week.

Mr. Stewart who is almost 55 years of age started on his long walk from Long Beach Cal., February 14. On his way east he traveled through Salt Lake City, Evanston, Granger, Cheyenne, Denver and Kansas City arriving in St. Louis several days ago. He then followed the B. & O. track east to this city.

When he left Seymour he had finished 2652 miles and yet had $67 to walk to complete his journey to New York which will make the total distance of 3519 miles. In order that he may have some proof that the distance was covered on foot he has credentials stamped at each city by railroad agents.

He has been in the United States for about twenty five years and when he arrives in New York he will go to London and there write a book about his long walk. Albert Mains of this city signed the credentials here and has been promised a letter from Mr. Stewart as soon as he arrives in London.

1. Township expenditures, $850, and Township tax, 10 cents on the hundred dollars.

2. Local Tuition expenditures, $2400, and tax, 25 cents on the hundred dollars, and 25 cents on each poll.

3. Special School Tax expenditures, $850, and tax, 10 cents on the hundred dollars, and 25 cents on each poll.

Total expenditures, $4100, and total tax, 45 cents on the hundred dollars.

GEO. H. HAUER Trustee.
Dated July 31, 1908.

Canning Factory.

Rockford farmers will soon be busy picking tomatoes for the Seymour Canning factory. There are about 500 acres of tomatoes near Rockford and these will be ready for canning in a week or two. When the canning season opens the factory will need about seventy-five people to take care of the crop. The factory is now putting up hominy but as this output is not so large a fewer number of employes are used.

One Day's Picking.

A. J. Haskett is one of the most extensive and successful melon growers of Reddington township. This year he has eight acres in canteloupes and with him the crop is good in quality and quantity. One day this week he picked and shipped from five acres enough to bring him $136.05. Certainly a lot of canteloupes to pick and sell in one day.

PRIME ISSUE FIXED

We do not blame Albert Lieber and Crawford Fairbanks for fighting against the popular movement in Indiana, crystallized in the Republican platform, for an extension of the legal regulation of the sale of intoxicating beverages or restriction, if a majority of residents in a county say so; nullification of the remonstrance law, if more than half the voters in a county so desire. Fairbanks and Lieber are party politicians, but first and all the time they are brewers. They are fighting for their purse, and with it incidentally. Their means of livelihood are jeopardized.

One thing they have done we admire. They have nailed to the peak of the political mast county local option as the prime issue between the parties and before the people of Indiana this year. We accept it. In the fervor of their opposition to prohibition advocated by those who believe that the rights to personal liberty when massed are supreme, they are not punctilious in truth. Their wishes are prolific parents of their thoughts and they deem the reading of their dreams will make them come true.

Truly, the issue is fixed. Each man's ballot in November will be a factor for weal or woe. Lieber and Fairbanks are in a trade that breeds criminals, makes good women weep in actual want, makes weaklings of men that might be strong to support them, that lures to degradation young men and young women that are the hope of the land. Indiana Republicans as a party seek to stay the woeful work of the open saloon; their political opponents are striving strenuously against them. The brewers are now in the open as leaders of the Democratic party in this state. The men they sell their goods to have violated all the reasonable laws framed to restrict their trade wisely in the public interest, which is essentially the personal liberty interest, and their violation of law has bred and nourished the present temperance wave that is sweeping state and country. They know it now and they know that Lieber lied when he said the other day that the wave is receding.

It is not the hope of the Republican party and its adherents in all other parties on this question to abolish the saloon from every corner of the state. Its work this year is to allow the people to say whether or no they desire to permit the legal sale of intoxicants in their community, the county being considered the true communal unit. That is all. What the brewers, speaking for the Democratic party, have proclaimed as the sole and only issue of the current campaign in Indiana can be understood by everybody. Too many hearts and minds have had the question seared deeply into them. It needs little discussion. Its two sides are plain to all. Choose which you will support.

Good Catch.

Miss Alma Grelle, of this city, probably holds the record among the girls of Seymour at fishing. This forenoon while fishing at Rockford with pole and line she hooked and succeeded in landing a fish weighing 44 pounds.

Trustee's Notices.

The township trustees are now giving notice of proposed tax levy and township expenditures for the next year. The township advisory boards make the levy and at their meeting taxpayers can appear and have a hearing.

Fire at Salem.

The residence of Oliver Martin, one of the finest in Salem, was burned yesterday when the family was away. Loss $8000. The water supply was so low that the department could not do much good. Mr. Martin has a number of acquaintances here.

Remains to Tunnelton.

The remains of J. L. Dixon arrived from Indianapolis this morning and were transferred to No. 7 and taken to Tunnelton for burial. Mrs. Dixon and two sons and a committee of Odd Fellows accompanied the remains.

Dreamland Tonight.

THE OLD POST

Historic Old Town Preparine for a Home Coming.

A committee of Vincennes business men is making arrangements for a Home Coming celebration October 5-10. The town was settled in 1702 which makes it the oldest town in Indiana, and consequently it possesses several historic features which will be used extensively in advertising the celebration.

An effort is being made to have Mr. Taft and Mr. Bryan attend some time during the week. Gov. Hanly Vice President Fairbanks, Senator Hemenway and James E. Watson have indicated that they will attend, and participate in the exercises.

Besides the Home-coming the committee will arrange for a carnival and other amusements. Letters have been sent out to all the former citizens and great crowd is expected to attend.

Some former residents of Vincennes reside in this city and will visit the old town during the home coming.

Speakers at Picnic.

The committee in charge of the arrangements for the Sunday school picnic to be held by the Ackeret Sunday school in Fox's grove Thursday, August 13, has secured a number of good speakers. Among them are Prof. Lawrence McTurnan, of Indianapolis, assistant superintendent of public instruction, Rev. Reagan, of Azalia, Rev. Knauff, of Seymour, and Rev. A. E. Peirce, of the Seymour circuit. This Sunday school holds an enjoyable picnic each year and they have planned for another good one this year.

District Delegates.

Delegates and alternates from the Fourth District to the National meeting of Republican Clubs have been appointed, at the recommendation of District Vice President S. G. Fitch, of Columbus, as follows: Delegates—John M. Lewis, Seymour; Arthur Overstreet, Columbus; Albert A. Tripp, North Vernon, and Thomas Creth, Versailles. Alternates—Lincoln Cravens, Madison; M. O. Richmond, Rising Sun; E. E. Jeffries, Franklin, and Harris Fitch, Lawrenceburg.

Farmer Loses Case.

Sam Simpson, a farmer up near Tunnelton, sued the B. & O. S-W. railway company in Justice Owen's Court for the sum of $150, alleged to be due him for detective services. The case was tried Tuesday before Justice Owens at Bedford who after hearing the evidence rendered a judgment for the railroad company. Simpson declared he had been employed to work up some matters for the road's detective department.

Killed by Lightning.

During the storm Tuesday afternoon John Browning, residing near Leesville, was killed by a stroke of lightning. Mr. Browning was employed by Contractor Ray, hauling gravel for a pike road in Flinn township and it was while on a load of gravel he was killed. Mr. Browning was 52 years of age and was the father of L. L. Browning, who is a young lawyer at Bedford.

Trial Thursday.

Charles Dunlap, of Bedford, who was arrested a few days ago by Patrolman Kleinstiver on a charge of wife desertion, will have a hearing in Magistrate Fogle's court Thursday says a New Albany dispatch. He was unable to give the bond of $250 and went to jail. Dunlap and Mary Hill, of Seymour, were married July 4 at Jeffersonville.

To The Public.

I am now prepared to receive on consignment some of the best grades of flour, potatoes, cabbage, watermelons, canteloupes, tomatoes and other vegetables, besides apples, peaches, pears and plums, at my place of business, corner High street and Broadway.

M. F. EVERBACK,
Com. Merchant.

Reorganized.

The city School Board has been reorganized and W. J. Durham is now the president, Dr. G. G. Graessle secretary and B. F. Schneck treasurer. Regular meetings the fourth Tuesday of each month.

DeWitt's Little Early Risers, safe, easy, pleasant, sure little liver pills. Sold by all druggists.

FREETOWN.

Miss Emma Huber came down from Indianapolis Friday to spend two weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Huber.

Mrs. F. J. Meek, of Greenfield, who visited friends here a few days last week, returned home Tuesday.

Mrs. Barbara Settle who has been in poor health for some time, continues about the same.

Frank Wheeler and L. W. Swain went to Indianapolis Friday.

Miss Ida Denny and Ralph Denny who have been in school at Danville for some time, returned home Thursday.

Miss Anna Becker who has been quite sick for several days, is improving now.

George Stodgill and family who have lived in Jasonville for some time, have returned here where they will reside.

Miss Frankie Reynolds, of Pleasant Grove, was the guest of Miss Mary Lucas over Sunday.

A number of people from here attended the picnic at Surprise Saturday.

Quite a surprise was given the people here when the news was given out that Mary B. Jackson and Frank Kerner were united in marriage at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Mann Sunday morning, Aug. 2. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Frank Reynolds, of Pleasant Grove. Mr. and Mrs. Kerner have lived here the greater part of their lives and are well known and highly respected. Monday night their friends gave them an old fashioned chivari that for noise and attendance has seldom been surpassed in this neighborhood. They have a host of friends who join in wishing them a life of happiness.

ROCKFORD.

The picnic was well attended Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Nelly and daughter, Dorothy of North Vernon, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. S. El Enos.

Anna and Wilson Smart, of Madison, are visiting their cousins Mary and Emma Smith.

Miss Pearl Brooks, of Flemings, spent a few days with Miss Goldie Kendall last week.

D. W. Rapp and wife, of Bangersville, are here visiting relatives.

Miss Matilda Leblaine has returned after a month's visit at Nevada Mo.

Marie Abell is sick with fever.

Misses Pearl Brooks, Rosella, Margaret and Goldie Kendall went to West Reddington Sunday.

Lewis J. Goble has been improving his home by repainting his house and fixing concrete porches and walks.

Walter Abell has returned home from Norfolk, Virginia.

Fred Siefker, of Indianapolis is visiting home folks.

Teachers Institute.

The annual institute of the teachers of Jackson county will be held next week at Brownstown and every progressive teacher in the county, who is not away at school will be there unless prevented by sickness. No teacher or prospective teacher can afford to miss the institute.

Spending Thousands of Dollars Experimenting The Scientist Made Great Discovery.

When a man is in doubt it becomes his duty to investigate and when proof is piled upon proof it is time to be convinced. There is nothing in life so valuable as good health. The reporter of this article personally knows of several people here that are rapidly regaining their health because they investigated the proofs produced by the Root Juice people and were convinced. We positively know that an eminent scientist devoted several years of his life to hard study and spent over ten thousand dollars experimenting before the afflicted were permitted to try his great discovery, which is now curing people all over the country, after all other remedies had failed. If you bloat and belch sour gases; if your food lays heavy on your stomach; if you have symptoms of indigestion, we honestly believe that one dose of Root Juice will convince you of its wonderful merits. Root Juice soothes and heals the mucous lining of the stomach, bowels bladder and at the same time heals and strengthens the liver and kidneys. It prevents fermentation of food in the stomach and bowels and stops formation of acid by causing the digestive fluids to be supplied in sufficient quantities in a natural way and giving the liver and kidneys health and strength to do the work nature intended them to do. The blood will soon be filtered of all impurities and good rich blood will be made to nourish the whole body. Poor weak women and dyspeptic, backaching, rheumatic men, take this advice before it is too late: Go immediately and get a bottle of Root Juice. Now on sale $1 a bottle, or three bottles for 2.50 at W. F. Peters drug store.

ARE PLURAL WIVES JEALOUS?

Mormon Woman Tells of Management of the Families.

In the American Magazine Madeleine Zabriske Doty writes very entertainingly on "Mormon Women and What They Think of Polygamy."

After telling the story of a plural wife Miss Doty goes on:

"I began to wonder what feeling this little woman had for the other wife. 'Did you and sister Sara D. ever live together?' I asked.

"Oh, yes, indeed, for several years after I was married we lived in the same house. My two oldest children were born while sister Sarah and I were under the same roof, and I think the children care almost as much for their Aunt Sarah as they do for me, and I believe she thinks as much of them as if they were her own."

"Why didn't you continue to live together, then?"

"Well, her children were older than mine and they spoiled my children and interfered with my discipline, so both sister Sara and I begged Mr. D. for separate houses. The man, of course, always likes to have all his family together. It makes it easier for him. But John finally consented to let us each have a house of our own. When he lost his business and his money we had to economize. He had enough to buy one house and he gave it to sister Sara because she was the oldest and first wife. I am glad he did. Even if he had consulted me I should have told him to give it to her. My father gave me the house we are in."

"I should think," I said, "that it would be the little, every day things of life, the little jealousies that must arise that would make it so difficult to live in polygamy. They would be much harder to endure than the agreeing to polygamy in the beginning. Why, you know how it is with any one you care very much for. It hurts if that person seems to be caring as much or more for some one else; yet if a man is human he must have preferences, one wife must be more congenial than another."

"Of course that is all true," she said, thoughtfully, "and it really is hard to live the faith right. It takes a fine man to live it, as well as the right kind of women. I suppose the man must like each wife for different qualities. Mr. D. has always been equally good to both of us, and I think he cared about each of us for different reasons. At first I did find it a little hard—not exactly hard, because I am fond of sister Sara—but I guess I was a little conscious. I know I never wanted him to show me any affection when Sara was with us. It is only a little thing, but I remember one day he came into the pantry when Sara and I were both working there and he came and stood between us and put an arm around each of us. Then he kissed Sara and turned to kiss me, but I ran away quick before he could. Sara only laughed; she said she didn't mind. She used to let him kiss her just to try to tease me."

MANILA A WELL-GOVERNED CITY

In No Town in the World Are Municipal Outlays More Capably Handled.

The city of Manila has not been given autonomous government. It is under the control of a municipal board of five persons appointed by the central government, and is governed, therefore, as Washington or the City of Mexico is governed.

In the proper improvement of Manila some six or eight millions of dollars had to be expended, and much business experience and foresight were required to build the new waterworks and the new sewer system, to repave the streets, to canalize the esteros, or creeks, to organize an effective police force and a new fire department. It was thought that it would not be safe to intrust the conduct of such important business matters to a body selected by the electorate of Manila for the first time.

The city of Manila has been well governed. Very large sums of money have been expended in most extensive improvements, and not the slightest scandal or dishonesty has been charged in any of the city administration. It has offered a most useful model for other municipalities in the islands to follow and has lent engineers, policemen and firemen to other towns to help the latter to better organization.

There is no city in the world better governed than Manila. The streets are well cleaned, are well policed, there is a most excellent fire department, the parks are being enlarged and improved, the street car system is as good as anywhere, and with the improvements in the water supply the sewerage system and esteros or canals, which are now under foot and part of which are quite near accomplished, the face which the Filipinos turn toward the world in the city of Manila will be a most pleasing one.—National Geographic Magazine.

KAISER'S MUSTACHE DOWN.

Accordingly, 30,000,000 Germans should promptly reverse theirs.

The Kaiser has altered the style of wearing his mustache, says the London Mail.

Thirty million loyal Teutons, the estimated male population of the empire, are directly affected, for to trim one's mustache in the martial manner immortalized by the emperor has become an unwritten law of the masculine patriotism throughout the fatherland.

It is stated that the Kaiser has decided to do away with the familiar, bristling, upward-pointing effect which has so long given his countenance an aspect of fierceness, and will henceforth wear his mustache with the ends long drawn out and with only the remotest suggestion of perpendicularity.

This revolutionary change, which will cause the caricaturists of the world to revise their whole conception of the imperial physiognomy, appears to have been forced upon the emperor rather than chosen by him. It is related that while his majesty recently was lighting a cigarette the left end of his mustache was singed and half burnt off. This necessitated the cutting off of the other end to make the mustache again symmetrical. The new formation evoking the lively admiration of the Empress, the Kaiser determined to retain it.

The barber, Herr Haby, who is given the credit in contemporary German history for designing the Kaiser's perpendicular mustache, became wealthy and famous in consequence of it. Herr Haby placed an invention upon the market called the "kaiser band," to be worn across the mouth for a certain period each day until the mustache became trained to bristle upward at an angle of 45 degrees, exactly like the Kaiser's. Millions of "kaiser bands" are in daily use in Germany and are among the proudest possessions of many a budding youth.

Poise.

People who would attain exquisite mental poise must dive between the white-caps and the waves on the surface of thought, down into the depths of their beings, where there is eternal calm which no mental tempest can disturb.

A perfectly poised mind must be in frequent communication with the divine. Dwelling upon human qualities will never bring that perfect mental balance, that divine serenity which makes mere physical beauty unattractive in comparison.

There is a sweetness, a ripeness, a divine something about a serene mind which eludes analysis, but which we all feel. No wealth can compare with the benign, satisfying influence which radiates from an exquisitely poised personality.

Some of our best observatories are built upon mountain tops, so that the great lens which sweeps the heavens may not be obscured by the dust, the dirt, the mists floating in the atmosphere.

In order to shut out the din, the terrible noises which distract the mind, in order to shut out the thousand and one disturbing influences in our strenuous life, the things which warp and twist and distort us, it is necessary to rise into the higher realm of thought and feeling, where we can breathe a purer air, get in closer touch with the divine.—Success Magazine.

Japanese Poisonous Varnish.

The naval surgeons have been giving attention recently to a mysterious disease which has appeared among the officers and enlisted men on duty with ships in Asiatic, and especially in Chinese, waters. A skin eruption developed, proving serious in some instances. It was found on investigation that it was due to a varnish applied to furniture and woodwork on ships of war. This article is obtained at Ningpo, and it is found that it has poisonous qualities, such as the poison ivy or oak, and this is communicated to those who come in contact with the varnished article or woodwork. The poisonous quality is retained for some time, and one of the naval surgeons who had been studying the affair has given the name Ningpo varnish poison to cases which are traceable to this cause.

Clean Tea Taster.

"I bathe morning and evening, I change all my underwear thrice a week, and I have my clothes steam cleaned monthly." The speaker, a thin, sallow man, was a tea taster. "You see," he explained, "I have to keep myself and all my senses extraordinarily clean and pure. The least dirt, the least smell, blunts my taste. My food, even, must be practically unseasoned. A dish made tasty with plenty of pepper and salt would throw me out infallibly for the day." With a sigh he resumed his luncheon of hot milk, dry toast, and a raw egg.

Still in the Lowgrounds.

"I don't see what he's fussin' 'bout, now that he's struck it. 'Pears to me it's time fer him to be happy."

"Well, you see, he imagines he's a lie trust, an' that the governor's after him, an' he thinks that because the governor hasn't located him yet, maybe he ain't such a big lie trust after all!"—Atlanta Constitution.

THE MOSQUITO'S BUZZ.

In Palestine, where several religions exist side by side, legends have crossed and intermingled in such a way as to make a distinct folk-lore. A collection of stories from "Folk-Lore in the Holy Land," by the Rev. J. E. Hanauer, contains many Bible legends in new forms and with humorous additions. One explains how the mosquito came to buzz and why the swallow's tail is forked.

After the fall of man, the serpent missed the reward which the evil one had promised him, namely, the sweetest food in the world. An angel was appointed to assign to every creature his food and dwelling place. The serpent asked for human flesh. But Adam protested, and pointed out shrewdly that as nobody had ever tasted human flesh, it was impossible to maintain that it was the most luscious of food. Thus he gained a year's respite for the race.

Meanwhile the mosquito was sent round the world with instructions to taste and report upon the blood of every living creature. At the end of twelve months it was to report in open court the result of its researches.

Now Adam had a friend in that sacred bird, the swallow, which annually makes a pilgrimage to Mecca and all holy places. This bird shadowed the mosquito all the twelve months, until the day of the decision. Then, as the insect was on its way to the court, the swallow met it openly and asked what flesh and blood it had found sweetest.

"Man's," replied the mosquito.

"What?" asked the swallow. "Please say it again, for I am rather deaf."

On this the mosquito opened its mouth wide to shout, and the swallow darted in its bill and plucked out the insect's tongue.

They then proceeded to the court, where all living creatures were assembled to hear the decision. On being asked the outcome of its investigations, the mosquito, which could now only buzz, was unable to make itself understood, and the swallow, pretending to be its spokesman, declared that the insect had said that it had found the blood of the frog the most delicious. Sentence was therefore given that frogs, not men, should be the serpent's food.

In its rage and disappointment, the serpent darted forward to destroy the swallow. But the bird was too quick; the serpent succeeded only in biting some feathers out of the middle of the swallow's tail.

This is why swallows have forked tails.

The Rat Boarder.

"Sunflower seed makes the best rat bait. How many pounds shall I put up?" The dealer showed how the trap should be baited with the seed. "I sell more bait and more traps daily," he said. "The world is coming to realize the harm and expense of these rat boarders who won't pay their bills. Why, I know firms with outstanding and quite hopeless accounts of $40,000 and $50,000 against the rat."

"Sea going rats cost the skipper 2 cents daily. Rats in feed mills cost 3 cents a day. In hotels they cost a half cent. In groceries they cost 4 cents. Also they cause ptomaine poisoning by scampering over garbage and then scampering over food, and it is well known that the bubonic plague is due to them."

A Stand-Patter.

"If you please, Mr. Thompson, you have spelled 'business' here with an 'I' and a 'z.'"

"How?"

"You have spelled it 'b-i-z-n-e-s.'"

"Well, let it go. The old way is good enough for me."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

AND THE CAT CAME BACK.

Can't Lose Schnitzel, Not Even on the Broad Atlantic.

John Schweitzer, a cook employed Otto Knabe, a restaurateur at 538 Grand street, may now be considered an authority on the homing instincts of cats, but he sadly laments the $25 he had to pay to gain the experience, says the New York Times.

One of the appurtenances of the place for the last five years was a Thomas cat. Knabe tried in vain to get rid of the cat on account of his piratical habits. No steak or chop was safe for a moment when Schnitzel, as the cat was called, was around.

Six months ago Knabe put the cat in a bag, took him to Bronx park and let him go. Three days later Schnitzel walked into the restaurant, thinner and hungrier than ever. Then the proprietor, not wishing to kill the cat, which had been given to him by an aged aunt in Hamburg, conveyed him across the bridge and deserted him in Prospect park, Brooklyn. A week passed and no cat. Knabe was receiving the congratulations of his old cook one Saturday night when Schnitzel walked in gaunt and hungry.

Driven to desperation by the jeers of his friends and the threatened resignation of the cook, Knabe took the cat over to Hoboken and left him on the deck of the steamer President Grant of the Hamburg-American line just before she sailed.

"Ach der poor Schnitzel! Ve shall see him no more," Knabe said when he got back to the restaurant that night, and the cook was jubilant. Two weeks ago Schnitzel arrived safely back at home in the care of Herman Spielplatz, one of the assistant cooks in the steerage of the liner, who knew Knabe and his aunt and recognized the cat.

Then the old cook quit and John Schweitzer was engaged in his place. Immediately steaks and chops began to disappear. The new cook soon discovered that the thief was the big gray cat. He went to Knabe and offered to bet $25 that he could take the cat away and leave him where he would never find his way back.

With Thomas in a bag, the cook took him to a building at 7th street and Avenue B, where he left him just two miles away from home. The agreement was that if Schnitzel did not return in ten days the cook was to get the $25. The time was up at 4 p. m. on Saturday.

Just an hour earlier Thomas turned up in the wake of a strange cat that had been drawn to the restaurant by savory odors. Thomas flew at him and in the melee two waiters fell down a cellar stairway, the cook hit Knabe with a potato masher he threw at the cats, and four customers escaped, leaving unpaid bills.

THE NEW WIFE.

A Future Specimen as Stephen Crane Pictured Her.

"The late Stephen Crane," said a magazine editor, "amused himself during his residence in England with the composition of tiny humorous sketches. Some of them he would send to me for criticism. I'll read you one if you don't mind."

And, taking down a scrapbook, he read:

"Er—Mildred," he said, a trifle nervously, as his better half laid down the morning's paper, and, lighting a cigarette, prepared for her departure to the city: "Mildred, dear, do you think you could spare me a little money to-day?" "His wife glanced at him impatiently. 'What, again, George?' she said: 'why, I only gave you your housekeeping allowance on—let me see—Thursday, wasn't it? Really, some of you men seem to think we women are made of money.'"

"You forget, my dear," he remarked; "there are the girl's wages and the water rent, and the children both need new boots."

"Didn't I give you the money for that?" she asked.

"No, dear; that was for the flannel for little Milly's warm petticoats I'm making. Besides, dear, I—don't be angry, will you—I saw such a cheap pair of trousers at the winter clearance sale yesterday that I couldn't resist buying them, and you know I've hardly a rag to my back."

"Always try your cry, George," she said, angrily; "really, your extravagance in dress is something sinful; it is a pity you haven't got to go and earn the money; you'd know its value then. Here, take this; and for goodness' sake do try and pay some of your household bills with it and not frivol it away on a lot of trash."

"There's a dear, good, darling wife," he cried, joyfully; "let me help my Mildred on with her coat," he added, following her into the hall. "What time will you be home?"

"Can't say, I'm sure," she answered. "I've got a lot to attend to at the office to-day, and I shall drop into the club for an hour or so after. So you needn't wait dinner."

"Oh, that'll be nice," he responded. "I've got my woman coming to wash to-day, and the girls and I are going to put up clean curtains and things. Give me a kiss, dearest! That's your car going now."

"And, as the bread winner dashed after the passing vehicle, George blew a parting kiss and went upstairs to bathe the children."—Washington Star.

Fahrenheit and Centigrade.

The Fahrenheit thermometer is the one in general use in this country, except among some of the scientists, who use the Centigrade. It would be well for all the boys and girls to know wherein the difference between them consists. In the Centigrade, the space between the freezing point and the boiling point is divided into 100 degrees, while in the Fahrenheit it is divided into 180 degrees. A degree of the Centigrade, therefore, is higher than a degree Fahrenheit in the proportion of 9 to 5, but as zero in the Centigrade is at the freezing point and in the Fahrenheit at 32 degrees above that, this must be considered in comparing them. To express 10 degrees Centigrade in the Fahrenheit scale, multiply 10 by 9 and divide by 5, which will give 18; then add the 32 degrees not reckoned in Centigrade, and you will have 50, which is the exact equivalent of 10 Centigrade.

PEAK THAT IS UNCONQUERABLE.

Lizard Head on Mount Wilson Has Defied Mountain Climbers.

The mountains and peaks of the San Juan in southwestern Colorado present a different aspect from any of the northern Rockies, says the New York Post.

They are grander, more precipitous, with sharper pinnacles and more jagged in outline. In height, Mount Massive, Elbert and Blanca slightly outrank those of the San Juan, but nowhere else can be found whole groups of mountains rearing their heads to and above 14,000 feet.

Mount Wilson—14,250 feet—the dominant peak, is one of the most massive in the entire Rocky mountain range. Just east of this mountain is the remarkable trachyte obelisk called "Lizard Head." The vivid imagination of an early pioneer who had been "seeing things" is said to be responsible for the name.

The summit is 14,160 feet above the sea. From a ponderous base the pinnacle rises 290 feet with a diameter at the foot of only about 60 feet, gradually tapering to less than half that at the top.

Lizard Head has defied all attempts of mountain climbers to reach its summit. The foot of the pinnacle is easily to stop." The boy left his father's house twirling his cane in his fingers, and laughed at his father's notions.

A few years later and that boy, grown to manhood, stood at the bar of a court, before a jury which had brought in a verdict of "guilty" against him for crime. Before he was sentenced he addressed the court, and said among other things:

"My downward course began in disobeying my parents. I thought I knew as much of the world as my father, and I spurned his advice, but as soon as I had turned my back upon my home, temptations came upon me thick and fast, and hurried me to ruin."

Mark that confession, ye boys who are beginning to be wiser than your parents.

The Bible says, "Honor thy father and thy mother, which is the first commandment with promise."

Purchased Territory.

Few persons, perhaps, whether old or young, could tell offhand how much territory the United States government has purchased. In the old times, when ambitious, grasping rulers wanted adjoining territory they generally got it by force of arms. Nowadays it is bought and paid for; so, at least, things are done here. Following is a list of our purchases:

Louisiana, from France, April 30, 1803; 877,268 square miles; price, $15,000,000.

Florida, from Spain, Feb. 22, 1819; 59,268 square miles; price, $5,500,000.

California and New Mexico, from Mexico, Feb. 2, 1848; 614,439 square miles; price, $15,000,000.

Arizona and part of Colorado and Nevada, from Mexico, Dec. 30, 1853; 47,320 square miles; price, $10,000,000.

Alaska, from Russia, March 30, 1867; 577,390 square miles; price, $7,200,000.

Oregon was explored by Lewis and Clark and Washington was acquired by treaty with Great Britain. The republic of Texas was admitted to the Union March 2, 1846. True, we acquired the Philippines and Porto Rico by force of arms, but that was in the accomplished, but thus far the steep sides of the 290-foot shaft have proved insurmountable. No doubt the time will come when the venturesome mountain climber will find a way, but many a failure is the record of the past.

Trains circle this mountain for miles on the way from Telluride to Rico.

Here's an Ancient Horn.

A ram's horn that was imbedded in a tree 183 years ago is a curiosity that Jason Elder, a forester ranger living at Paisley, Oregon, has discovered, says the Philadelphia Record. While rambling in the woods in 1888 Elder came across a yellow pine tree in the base of which was imbedded the horn of a mountain sheep. He did not then have time to make a thorough investigation, but since he became a forest ranger he had occasion to cut down the tree. He took a section of the trunk containing the horn to Lakeview.

The horn was a little to one side of the center of the tree. It was not curled as are the horns of mountain sheep nowadays, but was almost straight. Counting the rings of growth, the tree was shown to be 213 years old. Outside of the horn were 183 rings, indicating the number of years that had elapsed since the mountain sheep was caught and held fast by the yellow pine. The horn was soaked with pitch. It is ten inches in diameter at the base and thirty inches long.

"No Hope in a Haircut."

The poet of the Adams' Enterprise having had his hair cut, the editor of the paper makes this comment:

"That won't stop him. We know one of 'em who is as bald as a baby, and he's still pezzing away. Only last week he wrote a poem of fourteen verses. There's no hope in a haircut."—Atlanta Constitution.

Cough Caution

Never, positively never poison your lungs. If you cough—even from a simple cold only—you should always heal, soothe, and ease the irritated bronchial tubes. Don't blindly suppress it with a stupefying poison. It's strange how some things finally come about. For twenty years Dr. Shoop has constantly warned people not to take cough mixtures or prescriptions containing Opium, Chloroform, or similar poisons. And now—a little late though—Congress says "Put it on the label, if poisons are in your Cough Mixture." Good! Very good!! Hereafter for this very reason mothers, and others, should insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. No poison marks on Dr. Shoop's labels—and none in the medicine, else it must by law be on the label. And it's not only safe, but it is said to be by those that know it best, a truly remarkable cough remedy. Take no chance then, particularly with your children. Insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Compare carefully the Dr. Shoop package with others and note the difference. No poison marks there! You can always be on the safe side by demanding

DEADLY LURE OF THE WATER

Shocking Fate of Pleasant

Outing Party at Galena.

FOUR YOUNG PEOPLE DROWNED

Archibald McMaster and Wife and Albert McMaster and Wife of Chicago, Just Beginning Summer Vacation, Got Beyond Their Depth While Wading in the River at Camp Pleasant—Heroic Attempt of a Sister to Save the Drowning Quartet Was Ineffective.

Galena, Ill., Aug. 5.—Four members of a Chicago family were drowned here yesterday afternoon. The victims were Mr. and Mrs. Archibald McMaster and Mr. and Mrs. Albert McMaster. A fifth member of the party, Miss Laura Huehner, a sister of Mrs. Albert McMaster, had a narrow escape from sharing the fate of the others when she attempted to swim to their rescue. She and Archibald McMaster were the only members of the party who could swim.

The five young people, accompanied by Miss Henrietta Knell, a great-aunt of the McMasters, were just beginning a vacation period at Camp Pleasant, their summer home on the banks of the river here. Yesterday afternoon all except Miss Knell and Albert McMaster and his wife, May, waded beyond their depth. They cried for help and Archibald McMaster and his wife, Bessie, went to the rescue. It is thought that Mrs. Bessie McMaster became frightened and dragged her husband down, as he was a good strong swimmer. Miss Huehner responded to the cries of her companions and bravely went to the aid of the four drowning persons. Before she reached them, however, all had disappeared and after swimming about the spot until she was exhausted, she was forced to return to the boat, to which she clung until help came from the shore.

REGRETTING DEFEAT, INDIANA REJOICES WITH THE VICTORS

Here follow the opinions of some prominent Republicans of Indiana:

HARRY S. NEW—The expected has happened. Mr. Taft has been nominated and he will be elected. I do not mean by this that we are to have another edition of the Roosevelt campaign of 1904, nor am I in any sense unmindful of the fact that the task before us is cause for diligence and hard work. It is folly to say that a man who received 702 of 979 total votes cast has received such majority against the wishes of a majority of his party. Mr. Taft has been nominated because the greater number of Republicans wanted him. There is no limit to the number of good reasons why he should be elected president. No man who has been nominated for the presidency by either party in the whole history of our government has been better qualified or more conspicuously fit for the office than is William H. Taft.

SENATOR BEVERIDGE—We worked hard and without a single break in our ranks for Indiana's candidate and went down with our flag flying. But we are Republicans and will work as hard for the ticket as if our own man had won. Every Republican in Indiana should get to work and keep at work until the whole ticket is elected. Our candidate for president is one of the best equipped men for that office the nation ever produced.

WILLIAM L. TAYLOR—Of course Indiana was for Mr. Fairbanks, but Mr. Taft is perfectly satisfactory to the Republicans of Indiana, and I have no doubt at all he will carry the state by a safe plurality. He will grow every day from now until election time.

SENATOR HEMENWAY—We believe that in the success of the Republican party rests the future of this great republic. Secretary Taft has shown by his efficient service in the various responsible positions that he has filled his magnificent ability, and in every trust that has been imposed upon him he has shown wonderful aptitude for public affairs. He will be elected president of the United States.

JAMES E. WATSON—William H. Taft will make a good candidate. I earnestly believed in the nomination of Mr. Fairbanks, but I do not think the Republican party need be ashamed of its candidate. He is big of brain and big of body, will make a big candidate, and, when elected, a big president.

JAMES P. GOODRICH—The secretary of war is a well-tried public servant. He is essentially strong in all elements of manhood, is a thorough American of the highest type, is in full sympathy with the progressive element of his party, is a Republican in whom there is no guile and ought to be acceptable to the great body of the American people. He will carry Indiana, and I have no doubt about his election.

JOHN C. BILLHEIMER—While I was enthusiastically for Mr. Fairbanks, and believed he ought to have been nominated for president, I am willing to accept the sentiment of the convention and believe Mr. Taft will be a strong candidate.

GEORGE T. DINWIDDIE, vice chairman state committee—I see no reason why Mr. Taft will not carry Indiana by a good plurality. Mr. Taft's policies will be very much the same as President Roosevelt's.

JAMES BINGHAM—The Republicans of Indiana went to the national convention in good faith and the endorsement of that convention is all Mr. Taft needs in Indiana.

JESSE OVERSTREET—Next to Vice President Fairbanks I consider William H. Taft the strongest man that could be nominated. He is an intellectual giant, big brained and big hearted. I am satisfied he will be loyal, faithful and capable in the administration of the government.

MERRILL MOORES—The vice president was defeated, not from any fault of his own or of his supporters, but because the people are for Taft. The people of the whole country know him and trust him and want him for president, and they can be relied upon to elect him.

CARL RIDDICK, Secretary Indiana Republican Committee—While we failed to nominate our favorite, we must concede, and do, that the convention named a great and a splendid man in nominating Taft for president of the United States. In Indiana we believe in Roosevelt and in the Roosevelt policies. When President Roosevelt declared that his trusted friend, Taft, is one who will pre-eminently carry out his policies, we in Indiana accept that endorsement and we will take off our coats and carry Indiana for him by a safe plurality.

FRED A. SIMS, Acting Chairman State Committee—Indiana Republicans will be loyal to a man in Taft's support. His election will mean business confidence and prosperity will continue throughout his administration. He will grow in strength throughout the campaign, ending in his complete triumph, in which Indiana will have her full share.

CONGRESSMAN CHARLES B. LAN DIS—There is not a better equipped man in the United States for the office of president than William H. Taft.

DIRE DISTRESS

It Is Near at Hand to Hundreds of Seymour Readers.

Don't neglect an aching back. Backache is the kidney's cry for help. Neglect hurrying to their aid means that urinary troubles follow quickly. Dire distress, diabetes, Bright's disease. Profit by a Seymour citizen's experience. Mrs. Owens, of 26 Jackson St., Seymour Ind., says: "I know of a great many people who recommended Doan's Kidney Pills very highly. I used them several years ago for pains in the back and loins accompanied by severe headaches. My kidneys were out of order the passages of the secretions being so frequent at night as to greatly break my rest. I learned of Doan's Kidney Pills, procured a box at Milhouse's drug store and took them according to directions and was soon cured. I gave a statement to this effect August 1899 and now in August 1908, can confirm what I then said as the cure has proven to be a permanent one."

Aiming at Big Tie-Up.

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 5.—Orders have been received here from the legislative board of the Canadian Pacific railroad shippers for a strike of the members of the five allied unions, to go into effect at once. Eight thousand employees of the mechanical departments of the railroad, including all men from Vancouver to Halifax, will, it is believed, go on strike. The five unions involved are the machinists, boiler-makers, carmen, blacksmiths and allied mechanics.

Washingtonians Interested.

Washington, Aug. 5.—The new military dirigible balloon built by Captain Thomas S. Baldwin for the United States army, made a successful preliminary flight. Upward of a thousand spectators watched the big airship make several evolutions over the drill grounds at Fort Mier, opposite Washington.

Fatal Baseball Accident.

Evansville, Ind., Aug. 5.—Oscar Meyer, twenty-two years old, an assistant in the dental office of Dr. C. E. Pittman of this city, is dead from injuries received in a ball game at Fort Branch last Sunday. He was struck in the temple by a pitched ball, but thought little of the accident and was able to leave the ball diamond unaccompanied. Later he complained of severe pains in the head, and was hurriedly brought to Evansville, where he died after intense suffering.

For nearly forty years New Discovery has stood at the head of throat and lung remedies. As a preventive of pneumonia, and healer of weak lungs it has no equal. Sold under guarantee at W. F. $40 FOR HIS LIFE

This Is the Exchange Made by Young New York Bank Clerk.

New York, Aug. 5.—Charles W. Westerfeld, twenty-two years old, an assistant bookkeeper of the Produce Exchange bank, committed suicide by shooting himself through the head in the book room of the bank, just as two checks bearing his signature were presented at the paying teller's window. Westerfeld had no deposit at the bank to meet the checks, which were for $20 each, and the teller detained the man who presented the checks and sent for Westerfeld to make an explanation. This resulted in the finding of the young man's body in the vault where the books of the bank were kept.

The bank officials say that Westerfeld was a model employee, that they knew of no bad habits which he indulged, and that they know of no reason for the giving of the checks, as he might easily have obtained the amount of the checks from his fellow employees by loan. He had been more than three years in the bank's service. His accounts with the bank are correct.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 5, 1908.

In the death of Senator Allison, of Iowa, one of the most distinguished and useful men in public affairs has passed away. He entered the lower house of congress during the civil war and served four terms. In 1873 he was elected United States Senator and served continuously there for nearly thirty-six years. He had been a leader in congress for many years and his ability made him one of the Nation's most useful men. He was indeed a great man and held in high esteem by men of all political parties.

In a speech at Muncie Tuesday James E. Watson spoke plainly and emphatically about the designs of the brewers. It is plain enough that they want to dominate politics and get control of the state government. They have gone to the support of the democratic party in Indiana for that purpose. But the people of Indiana are not going to turn the state over to the brewers. They will take no such backward step as that. They will elect James E. Watson governor and the entire republican ticket. More than that they will elect a republican legislature, one that will not be dominated by Tom Taggart and the brewers.

The farmers of Indiana, are not much impressed with Bryan's appeal to them for campaign contributions. Most farmers are quite well satisfied with their opportunities during the last eleven years. Good prices have prevailed for all they have to sell and no class of people have prospered more than they. This period is in direct contrast with the last democratic administration when farm products scarcely had a market. Then the farmer had a hard time getting together enough money to pay his taxes. Farmers do not want to take chances on another democratic administration and will not fall over themselves in an endeavor to get to Bryan's contribution box.

The Best Pills Ever Sold.

"After doctoring 16 years for chronic indigestion, and spending over two hundred dollars, nothing has done me as much good as Dr. Kings New Life Pills. I consider them the best pills ever sold," writes B. F. Ayscue, of Ingleside, N. C. Sold under guarantee at W. F. Peter drug Co.

Women Use Whip.

Over at Elizabethtown there was a sensational fight between two women. As the story goes Mrs. Eliza Smith, believing that she had a deep grievance against Miss Lillian Dunlap, laid in wait with a keen whip. She pounced upon her with the whip and the blood flowed. But the Dunlap woman succeeded in wrestling the whip from her antagonist and made use of it, thus getting the best of the fight. Now their troubles are to be aired in court.

DOCTORS MISTAKES

Are said often to be buried six feet under ground. But many times women call on their family physicians, suffering, as they imagine, one from dyspepsia, another from heart disease, another from liver or kidney disease, another from nervous prostration, another with pain here and there, and in this way they present alike to themselves and their easy-going or over-busy doctor, separate diseases, for which he, assuming them to be such, prescribes his pills and potions. In reality, they are all only symptoms caused by some uterine disease. The physician, ignorant of the cause of suffering, keeps up his treatment until large bills are made. The suffering patient gets no better. The disease is the wrong treatment, but probably worse. A proper medicine like Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, directed to the cause would have entirely removed the disease, thereby dispelling all those distressing symptoms, and instituting comfort instead of prolonged misery. It has been well said, that "a disease known is half cured."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a scientific medicine, carefully devised by an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to woman's delicate system. It is made of native American medicinal roots and is perfectly harmless in its effects in any condition of the female system.

As a powerful invigorating tonic "Favorite Prescription" imparts strength to the whole system and to the organs distinctly feminine in particular. For over-worked, "worn-out," run-down, debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop-girls," house-keepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest earthly boon, being unequalled as an appetizing cordial and restorative tonic.

As a soothing and strengthening nerve tonic "Favorite Prescription" is unequalled and is invaluable in allaying and subduing nervous excitability, irritability, nervous exhaustion, nervous prostration, neuralgia, hysteria, spasms, St. Vitus's dance, and other distressing, nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the uterus. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets invigorate the stomach, liver and bowels. One to three a dose. Easy to take as candy.

TO BEARD THE BREWERS

Candidate Watson Will Fire Opening Gun in Combine's Stronghold.

Indianapolis, Aug. 5.—Congressman James E. Watson, Republican nominee for governor, probably will deliver his campaign "keynote" at Fort Wayne on Aug. 19. The matter is under consideration and will be settled within the next three or four days. Fort Wayne is the home of S. B. Fleming, nominee of the Democrats of Allen and Adams counties for the senate, who is expected to lead the fight of the brewers next winter against the effort to enact a county local option law. According to reports received at the Republican headquarters from Ft. Wayne, the brewers are counting on rolling up a big majority there for the Democratic state and legislative tickets, and the Republican leaders are anxious that Mr. Watson shall beard the alleged brewery combine there. It is therefore very likely that arrangements will be made for the meeting. Thomas R. Marshall, Democratic nominee for governor, will deliver a second campaign "keynote" at Salem, Aug. 22, so that he will have opportunity to digest Mr. Watson's effort and make reply to it.

John W. Kern will be notified of his nomination for vice president here on Aug. 25. He announced the date last night after conferring with Stokes Jackson, chairman of the Democratic state committee, who will have charge of the Indiana end of the program. The exercises will take place at the colosseum at the state fair grounds. Kern sent a message to Theodore P. Bell of California, who was temporary chairman of the Denver convention, notifying him of the date. Bell will make the notification speech on behalf of the committee representing the party. Bryan will be here for the occasion and will make a speech. Secretary Reiley of the state committee announced that Bryan will speak also at Terre Haute, but that he will not speak elsewhere in Indiana during the campaign.

An Emancipation day celebration advertised for the negroes of Indiana at the state fair grounds yesterday afternoon, with Senator Hemenway as the principal orator, failed to materialize. About thirty-five negroes were present. Gurley Brewer, a negro Republican editor and politician, made a trip to the fair grounds and, finding only a small bunch, returned to Senator Hemenway's headquarters and informed him of the situation. The latter decided not to make a speech. He left last night after conferring with some of his Republican associates here.

Acting Chairman Fred Sims has issued a call for a meeting of the Republican state and executive committees here Friday night, at which time reports will be received from every district and plans for the opening of the campaign considered. Sims is arranging for the taking of the sixty-day poll the first week of September, which will show the campaign managers what they have to count on. It is likely that the nominees on the state ticket will meet with the committee Friday night.

Senator James A. Hemenway has opened headquarters at the Claypool hotel. He expects to spend most of his time here until after the election. He is especially concerned over the fight for control of the legislature, as he is a candidate for re-election. He will deliver a number of speeches during the campaign. Will Hayes of Sullivan, who is chairman of the speakers' bureau of the Republican committee, will arrive here tomorrow night to open his headquarters.

The Democrats are arranging to form a state organization similar to the Lincoln League of Republican clubs. The Jackson club of Lafayette, headed by J. Kirby Risk and other well-known Democratic leaders, has issued an invitation to members of the various Democratic clubs throughout Indiana to meet there Aug. 29 to form a state association. Clubs are to be organized in every community by the Democrats during the next three months.

Gary Infested With Firebugs.

Gary, Ind., Aug. 5.—The "firebug" has been busy here, and four fires in twenty-four hours, all within a stone's throw of each other, have kept the entire populace on duty as firemen. Gary is without fire protection, even in the first subdivision, but it has water plugs, and the 500 feet of hose owned by the city is supposed to protect several million dollars of investment. In the south side no water mains have been laid. The losses aggregate $75,000, with $35,000 insurance.

Seek Solution of Murder.

Laporte, Ind., Aug. 5.—A post mortem examination on the body of the unknown man who was murdered near Rolling Prairie, this county, revealed the fact that death had been caused by the firing of a shotgun, the shot having entered the surface of the skin deep enough to penetrate the brain. Several of the front teeth were loose as if caused by a fierce blow from some instrument or perhaps a fist.

Life Sentence for Griggsby.

Anderson, Ind., Aug. 5.—Judge McClure has overruled a motion for a new trial for Vandyke Griggsby of Alexandria, and sentenced him to a life term in prison for the murder of James Brown, a white man, at Alexandria, last December.

NOTABLE PUBLIC CAREER ENDED

The Venerable Senator Allison Dead at Dubuque.

DEATH CAME AS A SURPRISE

Though the Aged Senator Had Been Seriously Ill for Some Days, the News of His Condition Had Not Been Given Out and the Public Was Not Prepared for Sad Announcement Which Came Tuesday Afternoon—Brief Sketch of Long and Useful Public Career.

Dubuque, Ia., Aug. 5.—United States Senator Allison died at his home in this city Tuesday afternoon, the immediate cause of death being heart failure. The end came as a result of a serious sinking spell due to a prostatic enlargement, complicated with kidney disease, and during a period of unconsciousness which lasted since Saturday afternoon.

Two weeks ago the senator left his home in the city to escape the heat. He went to the home of Mrs. Fannie Stout, a friend of the family living on the Asbury road, a few miles from town. For a few days his condition seemed to improve, but he later began to grow worse. Medical advisers urged that an operation be performed to relieve the prostatic enlargement, which was bringing his condition to a crisis.

Saturday morning the senator was brought back home. Soon afterward he relapsed into a condition of semi-unconsciousness. Except for brief periods of partial recovery, he remained in this condition. News of the serious illness of the aged senator was kept from the public as much as possible, and his death came as a surprise to his thousands of friends residing in this city. Only the more intimate friends of the family were aware of his critical condition.

Life Devoted to the Public.

Senator Allison was born at Perry, Ohio, March 2, 1829, the son of John and Mary Allison. His boyhood days he spent on the farm which was his birthplace. Reaching young manhood, he secured his education in Allegheny college in Pennsylvania and the Western Reserve college of Ohio, in both of which schools he distinguished himself at winning high honors in all the branches he studied. Senator Allison was admitted to the bar in 1850. He was married to Miss Anna Carter of Wooster, O., at Ashland, O., in February, 1854. From 1850 until 1857 he practiced law in Ohio. In 1857 he removed to Dubuque, where he took up the practice of the law.

Senator Allison was a delegate to the Republican state convention in 1859 and to the national Republican convention in Chicago in 1860. He was a member of the governor's staff during the civil war and raised troops to fight for the national integrity in 1861. In 1863 he was elected to congress and served continuously until 1871. In 1873 he was elected United States senator from Iowa and represented his state in this capacity until the time of his death.

In 1881 he was offered the position of secretary of the treasury of the United States by President Garfield, but declined to accept the office. In 1889 he again refused this office, when offered him by President Harrison. For the third time he refused the office when it was offered him by President McKinley in 1897.

In 1892 he was chairman of the international monetary conference at Brussels. He was a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination before the national Republican convention in 1888 and again in 1896. Shortly after his first election to the national house of representatives, Senator Allison's ability was recognized by his appointment to the ways and means committee. He immediately secured the confidence of the leaders of his party, and it was Senator Allison as much as any man then in the service of the people who planned and carried through all the great measures for the conduct of the civil war, the re-establishment of the national credit and the development of the national resources.

He was a contemporary of and a collaborer with every one of the great men whose services now are recognized as of inestimable value to the nation—Lincoln, Stanton, Chase, Sumner, Blaine, Edmunds, Sherman, Garfield, Logan, Trumbull, Morton and others.

His aid in the nomination of Abraham Lincoln as Republican candidate for president in 1860 was perhaps Senator Allison's first great service for his country. As an Iowa delegate to the Republican convention in Chicago in that year he joined the other party leaders who had determined upon the nomination of Lincoln and by their united efforts their object was attained.

When the war broke out he was selected by Governor Kirkwood as a member of the latter's staff for the purpose of raising troops. In those trying times he demonstrated his unswerving loyalty to his nation and his willingness to make any personal sacrifice if only the nation he loved might gain.

On the ways and means committee of the national house he began the career which made him the best authority in the country upon the revenues and expenditures of the government. For more than forty years he has been assigned by the judgment of his colleagues in house and senate to the responsible task of planning the revenues and supervising the expenditures, and no man who ever had part in this work had the confidence of both houses more completely.

Cummins in Race Early.

Lake Forest, Ill., Aug. 5.—Governor Albert B. Cummins of Iowa last night announced himself as a candidate to succeed Senator Allison in the United States senate. The governor paid a glowing tribute to his late political adversary's services to Iowa and the country at large, then frankly declared his ambition to be elected to the senate by the legislature of his state. He also announced that "Someone will be appointed at once to occupy Senator Allison's seat for the remaining months of his unexpired term." Governor Cummins returned today to Iowa.

BIG FOREST FIRES ARE STILL RAGING

Sweep of Flames Now Confined To Unsettled Regions.

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 5.—The latest advices from Michel say that the town is burning.

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 5.—The terribly destructive forest fires which have swept through the Crow's Nest district of the Elk river valley in British Columbia since last Saturday, devastating a vast stretch of territory, destroying many lives and millions of dollars of property, wiping out entire towns and rendering thousands of persons homeless, are still raging but are now sweeping a wild and sparsely settled country, and it is believed the worst is over.

It is impossible at this time to arrive at a summary of the situation as regards loss of life and property with even approximate correctness. So widespread has been the destruction and so scattered are the people who lived in the burned area of more than fifty miles in length and three miles in width, that any estimate of the number who met death in the flames is nothing more than guesswork. Stories of missing settlers are coming from Fernie, Cranbrook, Michel, Hosmer and other places, but many of these have turned up at some point far from their original habitation, and it is not believed the death list will exceed fifty names.

The property loss has been very great, but this, too, is difficult to estimate correctly. A conservative valuation would probably place the amount at $6,000,000 or $7,000,000. Several thousand persons have been rendered homeless, principally residents of Fernie, which, according to all accounts, is almost completely wiped out, scarcely more than a score of buildings being left where once a prosperous town of 5,000 inhabitants stood.

There has been suffering among the homeless owing to lack of food and shelter, but this has been alleviated or partly relieved by the prompt action of the people of every city in British Columbia as well as many of those on border states, in sending both money and supplies. This aid has been most generous and the temporarily destitute people will be adequately and promptly provided for.

Broker Arrested at Chicago.

Chicago, Aug. 5.—Robert E. Eastman, until last Thursday a broker with offices at 33 Wall street, New York, was arrested here last night. The charge against the prisoner was not revealed, but it was stated that the arrest was made after A. A. Knowles, a vice president of the Mechanics' National bank of New York, had come to Chicago with evidence against the man. Mr. Knowles refused to discuss the case, but Eastman asserted that his trouble was due to an overdraft of $15,300 on the Mechanics' National bank.

S.S.S. NATURE'S PERFECT TONIC

There is scarcely any one, no matter how vigorous and healthy, who does not need a tonic sometimes. Little physical irregularities upset the system, the appetite fails, digestion is poor, the body feels tired and worn out, and other unpleasant symptoms give warning that the system is disordered and needs assistance to ward off, perhaps, some serious sickness or ailment. S. S. S. is recognized everywhere as the best of all tonics, nature's medicine, made entirely of healing, cleansing, invigorating roots and herbs, a systemic remedy without an equal. S. S. S. has the additional value of being the greatest of all blood purifiers. It re-establishes the healthy circulation of the blood, rids the body of that tired, worn-out feeling, improves the appetite and digestion, and brings about a return of health to those whose systems have been weakened or depleted. S. S. S. acts more promptly and pleasantly than any other medicine, and those who are run down in health should commence its use at once. It will thoroughly purify the blood and tone up the system. S. S. S. is admirably suited for a systemic remedy because it is free from minerals; it may be used without harmful results by persons of any age, and no unpleasant effects ever follow.

HANLY MAKES APPOINTMENTS

Governor Names Delegates to Tuberculosis Congress.

PLANS FOR GREAT MEETING

Much Interest Is Being Shown in Arrangements for International Conference to Combat the White Plague, to Be Held in Washington Next Month—Indiana Physicians Are Prepared to Do Their Part in World-Wide Campaign Against the Greatest Foe of the Human Race.

Indianapolis, Aug. 5.—Governor Hanly has appointed the delegates who will represent Indiana at the International Congress on Tuberculosis at Washington, D. C., Sept. 21 to Oct. 12.
The list follows:

Dr. J. N. Hurty, secretary of the state board of health; Mrs. George W.
Spohn, Eikhart, chairman of the health department of the Indiana State Federation of Women's Club; Dr. M. A.
Boor and Dr. B. V. Caffee, Terre Haute; Dr. W. M. Varble and Dr. David C. Peyton, Jeffersonville; Dr. Robert Hessler and Dr. Charles H. McCully, Logansport; J. V. Rush, A. Strouse, Dr. E. P. Busse and Dr. W. R. Davidson, Evansville; O. E. Mohler, William P. Breen, the Rev. H. W. Ettleson and Mrs. John H. Bass, Fort Wayne; Dr.
George Lake, Wolcottville; William H.
Arnett, Elde P. Sallors and Dr. J. H.
Ross, Kokomo; F. W. Swezey, Marion; Charles Arthur Carlisle, Charles
G. Folsom, John Campbell, Dr. W. G.
Wegner, Dr. C. E. Hansel and Mrs.
Harry Johnson, South Bend; Dr. Chas.
S. Bond and Dr. George S. Grant,
Richmond; Dr. A. T. Fagaly, Lawrenceburg; Barret Moxley, H. A. Crossland and Dr. Edgar F. Kiser, Indianapolis; Charles W. Ebel and Prof. Severance Burrage, Lafayette; J. L. Mc-Pherson, C. W. Sherritt and Dr. L. L.
Ball, Muncie.

Great interest is being shown in the plans for the meeting at Washington.
In addition to the delegates named by the governor a number of county medical societies have appointed delegates.

OFFICERS NOT SATISFIED

Further Test Will Be Made in the Gun-ness Case.

Laporte, Ind., Aug. 5.—The finding that Mrs. Belle Gunness killed her three children by giving them arsenic and strychnine, and then committed suicide by taking a dose of the same drugs, is declared by the county commissioners and the doctors who performed the autopsy on the four burned bodies taken from the ruins of the house on "Murder hill" on the morning of April 28, to be a weak conclusion.
The conclusion referred to was the report made by Dr. Walter Haines of Chicago, that he had found fatal quantities of arsenic and strychnine in the three stomachs submitted to him for analysis. It seems that the stomachs of the victims were mixed before they were sent to Chicago, and in consequence the local doctors declare the report of Dr. Haines is of little or no practical value.

To remove all doubt, the doctors and the commissioners decided to have the body of Mrs. Gunness, now buried in Forest Home cemetery, Chicago, exhumed and the liver and kidneys removed and subjected to examination for the purpose of learning if they show any evidence of poisoning. As it now stands, the doctors hold that if the liver and kidneys show traces of strychnine and arsenic, then it is conclusive proof that Mrs. Gunness died of poisoning, possibly self-administered, but if traces of these drugs are not found, it will support the theory that there was no poison in the stomach of Mrs. Gunness—only in the stomachs of the children.

Shot by Mistake for Brother.

Greenwood, Ind., Aug. 5.—Gregg
Waddell, owning a store here, was compelled to eject William Lyon, commonly known as Beecher Lyon,
from his place because of misbehavior.
Lyon procured his revolver and returned to the store, threatening to shoot Waddell, but the latter kept out of his way. Later Ed Waddell, a brother of Gregg Waddell, was standing on the platform of the interurban station, when Lyon, on the rear of a car, mistaking him for Gregg, fired three shots, one taking effect in his arm. Lyon has been arrested. Waddell, while suffering much pain, is not thought to be seriously wounded.

My fambly's such a busy one!
They're doin' things all day.
They have to work so drefful hard
They have no time for play;
'N' when I'm tucked up in my bed
At night, they're working, too;
Seems though they never could quite stop
They have so much to do—
That is, exceptin' Muvver, 'N' somehow rather, she
Is never doin' anything
But havin' fun wif me.

My sister goes to school all day,
She is so dignified!
She reads 'n' writes 'n' studies books;
'N' only once she cried
When I was sick, right in my crib,
'N' then my sister said
That no one else knew how to fix
Carl papers on her head.
'N' then my Muvver laughed at her
As nice as she could be
'Cuz she was makin' toast 'n' gruel
'N' other things for me.

My Daddy's such a busy man
He can't have any fun.
My Muvver says he fights wif giants
'N' whips 'em one by one.
I guess he can, he is so strong,
But he's so tired at night
He kinder flops down in a chair
That Muvver sets just right,
Or else he lies down on the couch
'N' pulls his collar free,
'N' Muvver rubs his head 'n' nen
Makes goo-goo eyes at me.

I'm glad my Muvver never has
A thing to do but play.
I guess I'd be so lonesome
If she went away.
Sometimes I wake up early
'N' nen, when she's asleep,
I try to push her eyelids up
'N' inside take a peep;
'N' that's the only time she's cross.
I wonder why, when she
Has nuffin' else to do all day
But just have fun wif me?

Straightforward

It was the time of the return of the workers; the trains were steaming out of Broad street station heavily freighted. In a packed third-class carriage, occupying a corner seat, was Joe Mullins, a ruddy-faced, muscular-looking young fellow of the honest coster type; opposite sat Lil Rubens, evidently a factory hand, smart and good-looking of her class.

At Haggerston the train drew up with a jerk, shaking the standing passengers, who had not even the benefit of a strap wherewith to steady themselves.

A blind man got into the central compartment, and as the train moved again a concertina squeaked forth the prelude to "Ring Down the Curtain! I Can't Sing To-night," the blind man also doing the vocal part.

The song ended, and his companion, a girl—precoocious, pushful, a little woman before her time—took off his hat and held it before the passengers, crying out: "Pity the blind. Remember the blind." F. as were hastily buried in papers, and the gloomy scenery of the gasworks became suddenly very fascinating to the occupants of the corner seats; but a few pence found their way to the hat, and the girl called for a volunteer to take the offertory in the farther seats. There was no response, till Joe Mullins reached for the hat and shook it before his neighbors, saying as he put in his copper: "Things is bad, but here yer are."

The girl opposite gave him a grateful, appreciative glance as she also put in her mite.
Joe Mullins was in the same train the following evening, having been to the city to make a bid for some timber from a building that was being demolished. He was a wood-chopper, and, being steady, his governor had entrusted him with the ticklish job of making a bargain.
As the guard gave the "Right away!" Lil Rubens, the girl of the previous evening, came into the compartment breathless. All seats were taken, so Joe at once proffered his seat, which was accepted after a coy protest.
They both got out at Bow, and, with a remark about the elements, got into conversation.
When their ways parted he asked her—these young men of the East End can be very gallant—"Can I have the pleasure of yer company at the concert on Saturday night at the People's Palace?" She was there, so was Joe, with a bunch of violets, which Lil plinned in her blouse.
They had their fill of music by the interval, and left for a stroll and chat. "Fancy you turning up," he said. "I believe yer going ter like me."
"I liked yer soon as I seed yer take blind Jim's hat," she replied.
He told her he was working at the wood-choppers' shed, but times were bad.
"Those Church Army chaps and the 'omes is playing old 'Arry with us, and we are 'arning next to nothin'."
She was a machine ruler in a book-binding factory, standing from 8:30 in the morning until 7:30 in the evening, with just the midday interval for rest. "Wasn't I glad when yer gave me yer seat in the train! I should ha' dropped if I had to stand all the way."
Thus their courtship began, and progressed in the straightforward, rough-and-ready methods of this style of couple.

Joe did not consider himself engaged. "Think I awt to be dahnright 'shamed of meself, 'angin' up to yer when my job is so played ha'."

"Traps things'll be better by-an'-by," she replied.
"If I could only get a little bit of oof together, so as ter start a little green-grocery show; but there's only me ter look after the ole gel and lame Greg."
She had no one dependent upon her, and therefore, being more free, would have been inclined to risk matrimony had he hinted at it. But he kept himself well in hand with the reserve and caution which the mere man frequently exhibits, wishing to see the future more assured before imperiling the happiness of another.

Joe and Lil were shortly after walking down a side street off the White-chapel road, when at the far end they heard hoarse shouts of men and shrieks of women—some alien roughs were having a melee. A policeman emerged from a court and boldly seized what appeared to be the ringleader. Cries of "Rescue!" were raised, and the constable was in a very strenuous position. As Joe and Lil arrived he was down on the rough cobblestones with his prisoner; several men were leaning over them fighting, and trying to release the captor's hold.

"I ain't learnt jiu-jitsu for nixles," said Joe. "Le' go, Lil; I'm inter this"—and he elbowed his way through to the policeman's assistance.

Lil was loth to let him go, but quickly followed him up. Joe held his own, and kept the men off with a twist here and a fall there; two or three were soon hors de combat. He was unable to get the policeman up, and shouts of "mark him!" "Give him one behind the lug!" increased.

Then Lil got through beside her Joe. "Blow his bloomin' whistle, Lil," Joe whispered, "while I keeps these feens off."

She knelt down by the officer, seized his whistle, and loudly blew it.

A volley of imprecations rolled out from the men, and as she knelt a blackguardly ruffian broke through and struck her a tremendous blow with his iron shod boot. She reeled over unconscious.

Joe sprang to her, letting by the roughs he had been keeping at bay. But the shrill whistle had had its effect, and several officers hurried on the scene. The prisoner was well secured.
Poor Lil was unconscious and bleeding from a bad wound in her temple, so an ambulance was sent for. They took her to the London hospital, where she was tenderly received. It was to be some weeks before she walked with Joe again.

Joe was at the hospital the following day (Sunday), but the girl was delirious.

"HER PATIENT HAD BEEN CALLING FOR JOE."

The sister kindly took his violets and gave him a word of cheer—he was so gloom—and invited him to come on the Monday, although it was not the regular visiting day.

Next time he found her better. The nurse laughingly told him her patient had been calling for Joe. Did he know whom she meant?

He looked at his girl with rapture in his tear-filled eyes. "I thought yer'd be orl right ter-day. I dropt inter the Salvation Army barracks las' night, and the captain prayed for the sick 'uns in 'ospital. Yer can bet I sed 'Amen' to that."

They took a great interest in the case, looking upon Lil as quite a heroine, and, with careful nursing, in a few weeks she was relegated to the out-patients' department.

Later on there was a very interesting ceremony at the local police station. Lil was now quite well, and back to work. Joe met her one evening, saying the superintendent had asked him to call with her at the station at half-past 8.

On arrival they were ushered into the gymnasium, and found a big crowd of constables, their wives and some tradespeople they knew by sight.

"What's the game," said Lil.

"Blowed if I knows," answered Joe. The girl was looking herself again, her jet black hair pulled down rather low over the ears to hide the ugly scar made by the rough's boot.

The commissioner quietly congratulated her on being well again, and asked her and Joe to step forward. Then in a few well-chosen words he complimented them on their bravery in coming to the assistance of the King's officer, and in the name of the officers and local tradespeople presented Lil with a bracelet and Joe with a handsome sum of money. There was great cheering as Joe took the check and the commissioner fastened the bracelet on Lil's wrist.

They talked earnestly as they walked home. "Lil," said the wood-chopper, "I can tell yer strite now as how I luvv yer, and that little biz can now come off."—Pearson's Weekly.

Faking It.

"And this is the family Bible, I suppose?" said Mr. Newcome, who was waiting in the parlor for Miss Passay. "No," said Miss Passay's little brother, "dat's de new one sister bought last week so she could write in it all about when she was born."—Philadelphia Press.

KING BUYS SUGARED EGG

Alfonso's Amusing Encounter at the San Leandro Convent.

King Alfonso is the monarch who most thoroughly enjoys the delight of incognito and when dressed in civilian attire likes to indulge in jokes, as he did recently in Seville, says the Paris edition of the New York Herald.

He, with Prince Arthur of Connaught, both dressed in plain civilian dress, visited the San Leandro convent, whose nuns devote their spare time to the fabrication of sweetmeats and other dainties.

King Alfonso requested an old nun to pack up two dozen sugared yolks of eggs, which seemed to be a large order, as the old nun took about a quarter of an hour to prepare the dainties.

"Are these dainties," asked King Alfonso, "as good as people say?"

The nun seemed quite offended, as she answered: "Sir, never in your life have you eaten so good as these."

"Well," added King Alfonso, "please send another dozen to my wife and a third one to my son." And he handed the nun a bank note of a hundred pesetas. As the whole order scarcely amounted to 2 pesetas the nun, rather surprised, asked the king his address.

"All right," was the answer, "my address is the Alcazar, my wife is Queen Victoria, my son is Prince de Asturias and I—"

King Alfonso seeing the startled look of the nun, could not continue and went out laughing. When he was in the street the church bells began chiming and the nuns hurried to take their place to receive the king's visit to the convent, but Don Alfonso VIII. had already left the place.

On his return to the Alcazar the nuns of San Leandro had sent him three big boxes of sugared yolks, amounting to fourteen dozen at least.

"MORE THAN MONEY."

It was a raw spring morning with a wind that chilled to the bone, yet Lois Brandt said to herself that she would rather walk the streets all day than go to the Schuylers'. She hated herself for her cowardice; she need not lose her own self-respect, she told herself, because people treated her like a machine; and besides, the Schuylers might be different from the Harrisons, even if both were society people. But the memory of the two weeks of sewing at the Harrisons—the long, driven hours of work, the carelessly served lunch that was sent up to her, the constant fault-finding—all that was too vivid to be banished at will. With stern eyes and closely set lips she finally rang the Schuylers' bell.

The maid showed her to the sewing room at once, and in a moment a girl came in. When Lois saw her—the tall, beautiful young figure exquisitely gown-ed—the frown in her eyes deepened. But Grace Schuyler did not seem to notice it.

"This is Miss Brandt?" she asked. "Mother was called away this morning, but I think you and I can plan things out very easily. First, however, come in the other room and find the chair that will be most comfortable for you. It makes such a difference to one's pleasure in working—don't you think so?"

Wondering, Lois followed Miss Schuyler into the next room and selected a small, low chair. A footstool was already in the room, and all conveniences for sewing, and after a few clear directions, Miss Schuyler left. She reappeared, however, promptly at 12.

"Playtime!" she ordered, smiling. "We keep eight-hour days here. Your lunch will be sent up in a few minutes, and I had a little tea table brought in, thinking that you might like to make your own tea. I always do. Meantime, here are the last magazines, or if you would prefer it, help yourself to a book. The only stipulation is that you rest your full hour."

Almost incredulous, Lois went across to the tea table. Kettle and lamp were both filled, and matches, tea caddy, everything was ready. Curiously she lifted the little silver teapot; it bore Grace Schuyler's monogram upon its side.

"She's treating me like her friends," Lois said, slowly.

As the week passed other things happened—a red rose to wear home one night, a dish of bon-bons upon her work table, nearly an hour one afternoon of Grace Schuyler's beautiful music. When all too quickly the week was over and she received her pay, she tried to say it.

"It's been—so much more than money," she stammered.

"My dear," said Mrs. Schuyler, "isn't it always 'more than money' that we share in one way or another?"—Youth's Companion.

The Parlor Socialist.

It was the parlor socialist who started to prepare Against the coming of her guests A modest bill of fare. She knew that some were fond of cream. That some preferred the cake; That others liked a salad rich— It made her noddle ache.

And when she cut the sandwich loaf Her heart was sadly wrung; Professor Bing was fond of ham, Professor Rang of tongue.

"If all had tastes alike," she said, "I would help a lot, I wist." That's why she found it hard to be A parlor socialist.

The Alternatives.

"We get some sad cases," said the attendant at the lunatic asylum to the visitor, and opened the door of the first cell.

Inside was a man sitting on a stool and gazing vacantly at the wall.

"Sad story," said the attendant, "he was in love with a girl, but she married another man, and he lost his reason from grief."

They stole out softly, closing the door behind them, and proceeded to the next inmate. This cell was thickly padded, and the man within was stark, staring mad.

"Who is this?" inquired the visitor.

"This," replied the attendant, "this is the other man."

Getting Old.

Dickson—It used to worry me when the barber informed me that my hair was "getting a little thin on top."

Wickson—But you got used to it eh?

Dickson—No. Now it worries me because he doesn't mention it. I must be getting old.

To Be Sure.

The Client—Have I no redress?

The Lawyer (absently)—Not unless you have more than one suit of clothes.

A Rich Poet.

"I can't expect," said Scribbles, "to be as successful a poet as DeRiter. He has wealth on his side."

"Nonsense! He isn't very well off."

"He isn't? Why, he has money to buy all the postage stamps he needs."

AN AVERTED TRAGEDY.

The family had six black cats, all of which lined up daily on the back porch, expecting food and getting it, says a writer in the Washington Star. Then after a while mother began to say she did wish that she could get rid of a few cats. Father said he should think she would, too, and asked why she did not chloroform them. He explained that it was a painless sleep, and a method approved by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. Grandmother said she had read in the newspapers that the society used gas in an air-tight chamber, but, anyhow, it was humane. Uncle Ned said he never saw so many cats in his life, and that he was always stepping on one whenever he put his foot down.

Aunt Caroline said she hated cats; but one could get used to anything, even to cats. Susan, the colored cook, said she was going to leave if some of those cats didn't; that there never was a crumb of anything to eat in the house after those hollow cats had been filled up; and why didn't they hunt their living like other cats?

Then one day mother asked Uncle Nat to get a bottle of chloroform at the druggist's, which she left on the mantel shelf in plain sight.

Father asked where the bottle of chloroform came from, and what it was for? Grandmother said it was very careless of some one to leave a bottle of chloroform round like that, where any one could get it.

Aunt Caroline asked who was going to use the chloroform.

Uncle Nat said he was willing to buy it, and had done his part, and if any one thought he was going to kill cats with it he was mistaken.

The day was Thursday, Susan's day out. The family had gone for a drive, all except mother, who had a motive in remaining at home. It was now or never. With the light of resolution in her eye and her lips pressed firmly together, with a bottle and sponge in one hand and cats in her apron, she started for the barn.

Pursing her lips more tightly still, she gathered up more cats as she went. Then she shut all she had in an empty box, which was to serve as an execution chamber, and went in search of more cats. Two more were added; none was spared. The sponge was saturated and thrust into the box, and the executioner fled to the house without once looking back.

When father came home and found what had been done he was amazed. He wouldn't have lost the cat named Punch for anything, and he had always regarded Punch as his own cat, and Punch was a first-class rat.

Grandmother also evinced surprise at what had happened, and said she should always mourn the cat named Judy, for Judy was such a ladylike cat, and could always have a corner in her room to sleep in, for Judy was never in the way nor the least bit objectionable.

Uncle Nat said he wouldn't have taken any money for Topsy, as he regarded Topsy as his especial property, and the likeliest cat in the bunch.

Aunt Caroline said it was bad luck to kill black cats, and she couldn't think of anything she was so superstitious about as black cats.

Susan said she wouldn't have killed even one black cat for all the money on earth, and that she should be afraid to stay now, anyway, and couldn't wait till her month was up, either.

Mother hadn't a word to say for herself. That night black cats started at her out of the darkness, and once she awoke from a nightmare of pursuing cats, an army of them, and thought she heard them walling—the spirits of the cats she had chloroformed!

At daybreak she rose from her bed, dressed herself, and descended to the kitchen—and there on the back doorstep, peering through the screen door as usual, unhurried and expectant, were the six black cats, waiting for their breakfast.

"I'm so glad I didn't put a rock on the top of that box!" said mother. She gathered them in as if they had been prodigals, and all six of them had the breakfast of their nine or more lives.

The Cruelty of Thoughtlessness.

Most of the cruelty of the world is thoughtless cruelty. Very few people would intentionally add to another's load or make his burden in life heavier or his path rougher. Most of the great heart-wounds are inflicted by thoughtless thrusts, flung out often in a moment of anger, when, perhaps, we were too proud to apologize or to try to heal the grievous wounds we had made.

Can anything be more cruel than to discourage a soul who is struggling to do the best he can, to throw stumbling blocks in the path of those who are trying to get on in the world against great odds?

No life is just the same after you have once touched it. Will you leave a ray of hope or one of despair, a flash of light or a somber cloud across some dark life each day? Will you by thoughtless cruelty deepen the shadow which hangs over the life, or will you by kindness dispel it altogether? No matter how you feel or what is disturbing your peace of mind, never allow yourself to send out a discouraging, a cruel or an unkind word or thought.—Success Magazine.

MRS. FRANK STROEBE

A Remarkable Recovery.

Mrs. Frank Stroebel, R. F. D. 1, Appleton, Wis., writes: "I began using Peruna a few months ago, when my health and strength were all gone, and I was nothing but a nervous wreck, could not sleep, eat or rest properly, and felt no desire to live. Peruna made me look at life in a different light, as I began to regain my lost strength."

"I certainly think Peruna is without a rival as a tonic and strength builder."

Voting a Long Felt Want.

"You are something of an inventor, are you not?" asked the caller.

"I have done a few things in the inventing line," answered the man in the repair shop.

"Well," said the other, unwrapping a package he had brought with him, "here's an eight-day clock that has been in the family sixteen years. What I want you to do is to put an alarm in it that will ring for two hours if somebody doesn't go and wind it on the morning of the eighth day."

Still Bearish.

"Spigelia," said the ardent young man, "what do you suppose your father will say when I speak to him about it?"

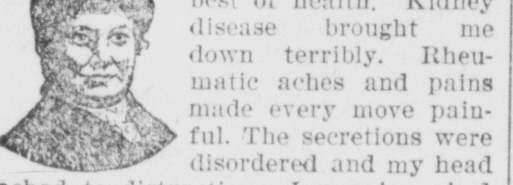

"He'll probably say 'Shucks!' But you mustn't mind that, Alfred, dear. He was on the wrong side of that corn deal, and it still crops out in everything he says."

HEALTH BRINGS HAPPINESS.

Invalid Once, a Happy Woman Now.

Mrs. C. R. Shelton, Pleasant street, Covington, Tenn., says: "Once I seemed a helpless invalid, but now I enjoy the best of health. Kidney disease brought me down terribly. Rheumatic aches and pains made every move painful. The secretions were disordered and my head ached to distraction. I was in a bad condition, but medicines failed to help. I lost ground daily until I began with Doan's Kidney Pills. They helped me at once and soon made me strong and well."

Good Short Stories

An expert gofer had the misfortune to play a particularly vigorous stroke at the moment that a seedy wayfarer skulked across the edge of the course. The ball struck the trespasser and rendered him briefly insensible. When he recovered, a five-dollar bill was pressed into his hand by the grateful golfer. "Thanky, sir," said the injured man after a kindling glance at the money. "An' when will you be playin' again, sir?"

An Ohio lawyer tells of a client of his—a German farmer, a hard-working, plain, blunt man who lost his wife not long ago. The lawyer had sought him out to express his sympathy; but to his consternation the Teuton laconically observed: "But I am again married."

"You don't tell me!" exclaimed the legal light. "Why, it has been but a week or two since you buried your wife!"

"Dot's so, my frient; but she is as dead as effer she will be."

A story, said to be new, of Balzac, is related by a French contemporary. A burglar gained admission to Balzac's house, and was soon at work, by the light of the moon, at the lock of the secretaire in the novelist's chamber. Balzac was asleep at the time, but the movements of the intruder aroused him. The burglar, who was working most industriously, paused. A strident laugh arrested his operations, and he beheld by the moonlight the novelist sitting up in bed, his sides aching with laughter. "What is it that makes you merry?" demanded the burglar. "I laugh," replied the author of "Pere Goriot," "to think that you should come in the night without a lantern to search my secretaire for money, when I can never find any there in broad daylight."

"One time," said Secretary Taft to some newspaper men not long ago, "three ministers wanted to cross the Mississippi river to attend a revival at a place which boasted of no regular ferry. Brother Styles and Brother Beamish were fine specimens of humanity—at least two hundred pounds apiece—but their companion was a mite of a man weighing scarcely one hundred and twenty-five. They got a boatman to take them over, but in midstream a severe thunder shower came up and the waves threatened to capsize the boat. 'Brother Styles,' said Brother Beamish, 'I think we had better join in prayer.' 'Do you, though?' shouted the boatman. 'Wall, I say you don't! You two big ones come here an' lend a hand at the oars—an' let the skinny fellow pray.'"

When Beau Brummell, the celebrated dandy, was in consequence of his fallen fortunes, residing at Calais, he had occasion to visit Paris. Through the kindness of the consul at the former place, he was enabled to accompany a king's messenger to the capital, and thus travel free of expense. When the messenger returned, the consul was curious to know how he and his aristocratic companion had fraternized upon the road. "What kind of a traveling companion did you find Mr. Brummell?" asked he. "Oh, a very pleasant one, indeed, sir; very pleasant," replied the messenger. "Ah! And what did he say?" "Say, sir? Nothing! He slept the whole way." "Slept the whole way! Do you call that being pleasant? Perhaps he snored!" The messenger acknowledged that Brummell did so, but immediately, as if fearful of casting an improper reflection upon so great a personage, he added, with great gravity, "Yet I can assure you, sir, Mr. Brummell snored very much like a gentleman."

AN ACCOMPLISHMENT AN ASSET.

Doors Open to a Girl Who Can Do One Thing Well.

"Wise persons are continually giving advice to the ambitious girl who comes to New York to make her way," said a club woman to a New York Sun writer. "They tell her how she can best live and dress, and what she should spend and study. But I have never known one of them to recommend her to have the thing which in my opinion, is the most valuable she can possess—namely, an accomplishment."

"I don't mean an accomplishment like china painting or making lace, but one which is entertaining, like singing, or reciting or performing a classic dance. For the girl who can do any little thing of this sort really well doors of both studios and drawing rooms are flung open, and she has a chance of meeting people who will be of advantage to her in every way."

"For instance, a stenographer came to this city last fall and went to work at $8 a week. She had a pretty hard time before she obtained even that, too. She was really a clever young woman, with a gift of mimicry and recitation; above all she had an unfailing sense of humor."

"She joined a working girls' club and for one of their meetings composed a comic account of the trials of an inexperienced stenographer trying to get a job in this city. This she delivered so brightly, with such a clever imitation of the various business men whom she interviewed and the fellow unfortunate she met, that one of the patronesses of the club who was present asked her to repeat it before a prominent women's club of which she was a member."

"This the stenographer did, and many of the women who heard her speak that second time became much interested in her. One of them soon afterward secured her a place as secretary to a wealthy woman, in whose house she now lives, with a salary of $18 a week and no expenses. Working up by slow degrees in business offices that girl would still be years away from such a competence."

"I know of a young governess who to-day is earning $75 a month and is having a beautiful time sailing around the world on a private yacht with her young charges. She received that place through reciting some amusing child monologues at a literary evening when the wealthy woman who now employs her happened to be present."

"Even the striving artist cannot afford to despise an opportunity to meet people here in New York, for there is no way of securing orders so sure as that of becoming personally known to people who are able to give them. A young woman who has more orders for portraits than she can finish in six months to come is one who had made herself proficient in cutting portrait silhouettes from black paper for the amusement of her friends."

"She was asked this winter to cut these silhouettes for the benefit of a bazaar given for charity, which she did, fixing up her booth to represent a photograph studio and charging each sitter 50 cents. She met dozens of fashionable people in this way and they have been the means of her present prosperity."

"An ability to play or sing well insures a girl being asked to all sorts of receptions and evening affairs and opens up all sorts of opportunities to her. The wise young woman who is preparing to face the world in New York or any other city will not despise a pretty accomplishment, even if it is only an ability to recite light bits of verse cutely."

"Money spent in learning to make herself entertaining is money well invested, for all in New York want to be amused and will cultivate the friendship of any one who is able to cater to their amusement and that of their friends."

LOUISIANA'S FUTURE WEALTH

Seven Millions of Acres of Swamp Land, the Most Fertile in the World.

Louisiana to-day embraces within its boundaries an area which is, in its present condition, as useless to its people as a corresponding area on the high seas, says the Southern Farm Magazine. Yet this now worthless area, something over 7,000,000 acres, is the greatest body of fertility in the world, except probably in the Amazon flood plain. The cultivated portion of the alluvial district south of Red river is to-day supporting the densest agricultural population in the United States—a population of 330 to the square mile of cultivated land, omitting entirely the urban population of New Orleans.

Based upon what the alluvial lands are now doing, the undrained lands of Louisiana—lands to-day wholly unoccupied—are capable of supporting, not counting the cities which would exist there, over 3,500,000, a population exceeding any one of forty states of the American union. Holland, on an alluvial area (2,750,000 acres) considerably less than one-half of Louisiana's undrained area, and with a fertility not up to the Louisiana standard, supports about 5,000,000 people and up to the highest standard of Europe. Holland is almost a synonym for wealth.

Beyond question the drainage of the remaining marshes and swamps of the United States is the most important natural development awaiting us and is sure to be done by the present generation. Scores of drainage projects are now actively under way and thousands of acres have already been brought under cultivation with most satisfactory results. The production of these new lands far exceeds that of the older cultivated lands of this famously productive delta and, except where reclaimed by companies for the purpose of sale they are rarely offered at any price. Here the drainage movement is getting momentum and it will not stop until southern Louisiana has become the richest agricultural community of its size in the world.

Fighting the Mosquito.

United States Consul Bishop of Palermo, Sicily, reports some experiments made by the chief of the sanitary service at Gaboon, French Africa, with the cactus as a substitute for petroleum for the extermination of the mosquitoes in warm climates.

"The thick, pulpy leaves of the cactus," he says, "cut up in pieces, are thrown into water and macerated until a sticky paste is formed. This paste is spread upon the surface of stagnant water and forms an isolating layer, which prevents the larvae of the mosquitoes from coming to the top to breathe and destroys them through asphyxiation."

"It is true that petroleum can do the same service, but in warm climates petroleum evaporates too quickly, and is thus of little avail. The mucilaginous cactus paste, on the contrary, can hold its place indefinitely, lasting weeks, months or even an entire year; and the period of development of the larvae being only about a fortnight, it has the most thorough effect."—Detroit News-Tribune.

Clay and the Salary Grab.

"Quinn," said an old member one day. "I heard you worrying about the mileage. Did you ever hear the story of Clay and the salary grab?"

"No," I replied.

"When Clay was Speaker," he continued, "along about 1816, the crowd raised their salaries to $1,500 a year. There was a great howl all over the country, and when Clay reached home in Kentucky, he found old one-armed John Pope, a Federalist, out after his scalp to beat the band, and all the Clay adherents ominously silent. Worried and anxious Clay sought out his old barber, who had always been enthusiastic in his advocacy and who happened to be an Irishman. 'I trust I may count on your hearty support as usual,' Clay asked. 'Faith, Mr. Clay,' said the Irish barber, 'I think I shall vote at this time for the man who can get but one hand into the Treasury.'"

Ought to Know.

The animal trainer, having been taken suddenly ill, his wife reported for duty in his stead.

"Have you ever had any experience in this line?" asked the owner of the circus and menagerie, with some doubt.

"Not just exactly in this line," she said, "but my husband manages the beasts all right, doesn't he?"

"He certainly does."

"Well, you ought to see how easy I can manage him."—Chicago Record-Herald.

WIFE WON.

Husband Finally Convinced.

Some men are wise enough to try new foods and beverages and then generous enough to give others the benefit of their experience.

A very "conservative" ill's man, however, let his good wife find out for herself what a blessing Postum is to those who are distressed in many ways, by drinking coffee. The wife writes:

"No slave in chains, it seemed to me, was more helpless than I, a coffee captive. Yet there were innumerable warnings—waking from a troubled sleep with a feeling of suffocation, at times dizzy and out of breath, attacks of palpitation of the heart that frightened me."

"Common sense, reason, and my better judgment told me that coffee drinking was the trouble. At last my nervous system was so disarranged that my physician ordered 'no more coffee.' 'He knew he was right and he knew I knew it, too. I capitulated. Prior to this our family had tried Postum but disliked it, because, as we learned later, it was not made right."

"Determined this time to give Postum a fair trial, I prepared it according to directions on the pkg.—that is, boiled it 15 minutes after boiling commenced, obtaining a dark brown liquid with a rich snappy flavor similar to coffee. When cream and sugar were added, it was not only good but delicious."

"Noting its beneficial effects in me the rest of the family adopted it—all except my husband, who would not admit that coffee hurt him. Several weeks elapsed during which I drank Postum two or three times a day, when, to my surprise, my husband said: 'I have decided to drink Postum. Your improvement is so apparent—you have such fine color—that I propose to give credit where credit is due.' And now we are coffee-slaves no longer."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

DOCTOR SAID "USE CUTICURA"

In Bad Case of Eczema on Child—Disease Had Reached a Fearful State—His Order Resulted in Complete Cure.

"When I was small I was troubled with eczema for about three months. It was all over my face and covered nearly all of my head. It reached such a state that it was just a large scab all over, and the pain and itching were terrible. I doctored with an able physician for some time and was then advised by him to use the Cuticura Remedies, which I did, and I was entirely cured. I have not been bothered with it since. I used Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment but do not know exactly how much was used to complete the cure. I can safely say that Cuticura did a lot for me. Miss Anabel Wilson, North Branch, Mich., Oct. 20, 1907."

Quite the Contrary.

"Gentlemen," said the campaign spell-binder, as he began his speech, "in the words of our illustrious chief at Washington, who said: 'Speak—'"

"Louder!" yelled a score of voices in the back part of the hall.

"Not at all, gentlemen," said the orator, visibly irritated. "He said, as every well informed person knows: 'Speak softly, even while carrying the big stick. If I am interrupted again'—here he waved the chairman's gavel aloft—"I shall use the big stick unsparringly!"

Having thus asserted himself, and silenced the rude persons who had been guilty of the unseemly interruption, he resumed his speech.—Chicago Tribune.

DEHLER'S

3RD ANNUAL

MID-SUMMER CLEARANCE SALE

SHOES and CLOTHING

-- WILL START --

THURSDAY, AUG. 6, '08, 8:00 A. M.

Stores Will be Closed All Day Wednesday, Aug. 5 to Re-Mark Goods

NO GOODS CHARGED OR SENT ON APPROVAL DURING THIS SALE

This is the Great Clearing Event so well known to the Seymour and Vicinity Public. It will surpass all previous sales in breadth of assortment and lowness of price. Thousands of Dollars Worth of Reliable and Seasonable Merchandise will be placed on sale regardless of cost or former selling prices. All Summer Merchandise Must be Sold. Many people want an explanation of how we are able to offer such grand bargains. Every person knows that the past six months has been a period of unsettled business conditions. Manufacturers of high grade merchandise have suffered, and a great many sacrificed their profits in order to realize ready cash to meet their obligations. We were alive to the opportunities presented and took advantage of them. So we invite you to participate in the good things we have to offer you below:

This Sale will mean a saving
